

Living Open Source Foundation Sponsors

Many IT companies struggle to find qualified staff. The Living Open Source Foundation aims to bridge this gap by providing trained professionals ready to meet industry needs. If you are looking for skilled staff but face challenges in finding them, consider sponsoring our initiatives.

Our primary mission is to create job opportunities in Africa. While we are pleased when our students can work directly at your location, our greater aim is to have your company offer remote work. By enabling our students to work from their home countries, we drive progress within these regions. Successful students will contribute to building and strengthening local Living Open Source communities!

Through the Living Open Source University program, we train our students rigorously. Students apply to the program, and we encourage sponsors to engage early in the process. Currently, we offer two sponsorship options:

1. Adopt a Student: This option allows you to support a student throughout their entire program. In many African countries, students face financial challenges, often having to leave school to support their families. Your sponsorship provides them with a salary, ensuring they can complete their studies. In return, you gain access to student resumes and have the first option to employ the student upon graduation.

2. Offer a Perspective: With this option, you commit to offering job interviews to our graduates. We handle all the details and connect you with students ready to start working. You pay a modest entrance fee for access to our pool of graduates, and if you decide to hire a candidate, you pay a mediation fee. This fee helps us sustain and expand our activities.

By sponsoring the Living Open Source Foundation, you not only gain access to qualified professionals but also contribute to the development and empowerment of communities in Africa. Join us in making a significant impact.